As if it were not enough that a globe- resigning his position under Jackson to trotter should come into the Presidency as another one goes out, Mr. Fairbanks This seems to be the only instance where as another one goes out, Mr. Fairbanks has added to the situation by his decision to become a traveler. Altogether, it constitutes such a travel record as the nation Calhoun had about the most distinguished to the constitution of the constitution never saw before, and may not see again guished career of any of the Vice President. He abundred years. Mr. Fairbanks can dents who failed to become President. He well afford to take his trip. Born a poor held a number of important positions boy, he has kept everlastingly at it in thereafter, among them the Secretaryship the way that brings success, and he finds vice President who became President by himself a comparatively rich man. His vote of the people, if Theodore Roosevelt children are all grown and married, and he has seen them safely established before he has come within halling distance of sixty. Mr. Fairbanks will probably return to Indianapolis after his trip abroad, and there settle down to the management of his estates and to the life of an affluent lawyer. Whether he will reagement of his estates and to the life of after having played a major role. After having played a major role having played a major rol of his friends believe that he will.

There is, perhaps, no other man in the warm-hearted of men. Even to the person he meets casually he returns as warm a greeting as any one could wish. His devotion to duty is not known to the country at large as it is to those who know him well. Last spring, when the campaign for the Presidential nomination was on, Mr. Fairbanks might naturally have desired to go into the field and promote his candidacy for the Presidential nomination. If he had gone, no one could have suffered thereby, as there is always

Perhaps no other American citizen who has reached the Vice Presidency has had a more remarkable career thereafter than Adlai Stevenson, recent Democratic candidate for governor of Hilmois. Since the civil war he has been the only Vice President who was later nominated for the same position. Thomas A. Hendricks was nominated for the place in 1876, and again in 1884. He was defeated, along with Tilden, in the former year, but was elected in the latter campaign.
